NFT MARKETPLACE ARTCHIVE PARTNERS WITH CELEBRITY PHOTOGRAPHY DAVID MONTGOMERY

The red carpet of NFTs will be collaborating with the world-renowned artist to sell some of his most iconic photographs as NFTs.

NEW YORK, NY – JAN. 13, 2022 – Upcoming NFT platform ARTCHIVE announces its team up with celebrity photographer David Montgomery. The marketplace will bring some of his most iconic works to the metaverse, where collectors will have the opportunity to own one of his many images. ARTCHIVE will ensure that 1 to 1 NFTs will be sold, creating authenticity and exclusiveness within their platform.

Montgomery is known for his portraits of the rich and famous. He has photographed household names like Sophia Loren, Mick Jagger, Bill Clinton, Jimi Hendrix, Margaret Thatcher and Andy Warhol. Notably, Montgomery was the very first American to photograph Queen Elizabeth II in 1967.

Partnering with world-renowned photographers like Montgomery represents ARTCHIVE’s mission to connect the art world with the digital, merging fine art into the metaverse and allowing everyone to own original pieces of art at their fingertips.

ABOUT ARTCHIVE

The red carpet of NFTs, ARTCHIVE provides a platform for NFT-powered fine arts and photography designed for the community on the Solana blockchain. Through collaborations with established and influential artists and partners, ARTCHIVE brings forth a secured, user-friendly NFT marketplace, scalable blockchain and a paired native token (ARTC). The ARTCHIVE mission is to ignite a creator-centric platform that leverages blockchain in a powerful way.
