

ARTCHIVE TEAMS UP WITH NIKKI L. BROWN ART ADVISORY TO PRODUCE AUTHENTIC ART PIECES IN THE FORM OF NFTS

The partnership will be expanding the genre of art the NFT marketplace will be providing to consumers on the platform.

NEW YORK, NY – MARCH 10, 2022 – Exclusive NFT marketplace ARTCHIVE today announced their partnership with curator Nikki L. Brown Art Advisory, who will work with a variety of top tier artists to create one-off NFTs. Further merging the physical art world with the digital, this collaboration will offer a new direction for the platform, as they will be venturing into producing and selling high-end art in the form of NFTs.

Specializing in modern and contemporary art, Brown has worked with many of the world's top collectors, from sales and acquisitions to managing risks of owning notable collectables. Her firm focuses on assisting both private and institutional clients in the strategic creation, development and management of their collectors. As a unique pairing, Brown will be providing her expertise and management skills to ARTCHIVE, assisting in expanding the variety of art the platform will offer to its consumers.

"ARTCHIVE is honored to be working with Nikki L. Brown Art Advisory, as she has represented numerous galleries across the United States," says William Meyer, Chief Technical Officer of ARTCHIVE. "We are extremely esteemed to be among her outstanding roster and excited to begin producing fine art, blending the physical and digital art worlds."
